Hammon Eggs is a retired actor and he cannot do anything but act. He has a lovely time on the farm acting for the cows and hens. He wanders out and meets a lot of animals, who laugh at his recitations and his dance to Mendelsohn's Spring Song. The cow says she can do better herself and proceeds to prove it. He sings an ode to the birds of spring, "Oh beautiful fish, oh birds of the sea, why do you always bite bites out of me?" One of the cows asks a hen for an egg, and then throws it at Hammon, whose recitations come to an abrupt end.
